

Well, we arrived Tuesday and we called ourselves students and the professors did arrive at the hostel just as we got ready to contact them. The questions began to fly. What kind of a message? How did you speak to them? What were they like? Have you really spoken with beings from another planet? What did they say?

Professor Jose went on to tell his story.

"My first physical meeting happened in an unexpected way. I thought it was a joke at first. I received a phone call from a male voice identifying himself as the commander of a craft I had often observed in the sky near my home. He invited me to meet with him and others traveling with him. He told me where to meet him in the countryside on a farm outside Cuzco. I didn't know what to think. It seemed ridiculous getting a phone call like that, but I had to find out if it was authentic.

"So, I went to the farm and there really was a male figure. About a hundred feet behind him were two other figures, one a female. They looked very human but they had on identical uniforms. Their eyes were larger than typically human eyes and their ear lobes were small and blended into the sides of their faces.

"At first, as I approached the commander in front, I hesitated. I could hear the other two in the background laughing. The commander asked, 'Why do you stop?'

I replied, 'It's not right, I don't appreciate being laughed at.'

"My dear friend," he explained, "we are not laughing at you. You see, we live in a vibration of high joy. It is a natural pastime of our people to be laughing. It feels good. We only wish for you to join us and share in the joy. We do not wish to cause you discomfort."

The professor began to wipe the tears away from his eyes as they slowly rolled down his cheeks.

"I cannot yet talk about this incident without shedding tears. I was deeply moved by these beings. In their presence I felt their essence. It was one of joy and love and acceptance, unlike what we are accustomed to among our fellow man. I asked them why they had come?

"They told me we are all the Source. That we and God are One. That even a spaceship reflects a portion of us. They said when we are willing to view ourselves, thusly we will find many other willing craft who will cooperate in our search for ourselves. They said we would then create the sightings we desire, only when we are willing to accept what they show us about ourselves. We must look then at what those ships represent to us. Could they be symbols of our own truth, awareness, and understanding, our own love, acceptance, and creativity?

"They said they come to remind our race of its unrealized potential. As we believe in ourselves, as souls, not only as simple human beings, we will then accept all that we really are. We need not look any further than ourselves. This is what has been taught by all the masters who have walked upon our earth, either as a spiritual or extraterrestrial personage. It is the cornerstone of all that we seek as human beings. It matters not where we go, the source will always be within us. Not only in physical life, but also within all dimensions of reality in which we will create our experience. The secret, if any, is to consciously realize the Source.

"They said mankind is fast approaching what will be remembered in future times as the crossroads of our existence. The sleeping giant is awakening. That the giant is simply us, as we realize for the first time consciously our own greatest potential. They are here to assist us in our time of growth and transition from the past into the positive future of self-realization and understanding. They salute us in our efforts to become what we are—conscious co-creators of our own existence. Such is the nature of our universe. They of the Pleiades, along with others from outside our universe, approach us with open arms. They do not choose to experience our doubts. They only believe in our potential. We are not to allow others to form the way for us. Only we hold the key to our own door of knowledge and understanding, only we can open the way to our spiritual reality, and only we have the courage to do so. They offer us their love, their encouragement, and their support. They believe in us even when we fail to believe in ourselves."

The professor continued, "I asked them why they do not make themselves known to the masses and they answered that they would welcome the opportunity right now to meet with the citizens of our world. They would like to share with us the beauty of their culture and their worlds, as well as the knowledge attained through their experiences. It saddens them to see the war, pain, and suffering in our world when they know its true beauty and potential. It will be a joyous occasion for them when our meetings do occur.

"They said that it is unfortunate that those now in power in our world do not welcome their presence.

"However, they are discovering that when they introduce themselves to individuals, they are well received."
